Labor Day is a celebration of the American workforce. On this Labor Day, we applaud the Baylor College of Medicine workforce. From those on the job today, like physicians and staff at hospitals, scientists and lab workers monitoring research, to those who work every day in administrative roles, taking care of patients, teaching students, solving mysteries of disease, and advancing our mission of education, research, patient care and community service, we thank you.

Look in the Medical and Science section every Monday and visit bcm.edu to see how Baylor is achieving the amazing in our community.
